

Manjari Chandran-Ramesh

I am an Engineer by background and did my PhD at Oxford University in Mobile Robotics. I work now in a venture capital firm where a part of my day job involves working with software start-up companies creating and executing their commercial, technical and funding strategies, as a Board Director. I was fortunate enough to go to a school which encouraged a rounded education without losing the focus on academic achievement. I look back on those initial years along with the support I got at home as the key foundation for me as a person and I am now excited about the opportunity to input into St. Swithun's vision for the next generation. I joined as a co-opted governor in September 2019.
